

2009 is the year that Fauquier County, VA celebrates its 250th Anniversary. Saturday, September 19, the Village of Marshall celebrated this milestone event with street vendors, antique car show and a parade, which included the US Marine Marching Band and much, much more! The whole community pitched in and made this a spectacular day and Oak View National Bank did not miss out on all the fun!

As a community bank, we participated in this celebration by creating a float, "Community Banks Build Better Communities". It featured a fireman, graduate, doctor, construction worker, and children proudly displaying their favorite sport past-time; showing that Oak View National supports its citizens, businesses and its community. A good time was had by all! Check out the pictures of all the fun!
